

INDIGENOUS CERTIFICATION BOARD OF CANADA

APPLICATION FOR CERTIFICATION EQUIVALENCE

New Applicant

The Indigenous Certification Board of Canada certifies workers who are employed in Indigenous settings, but supports employment choices for all ICBOC first certification applicants and existing ICBOC certified members. Applicants who are interested in obtaining professional certification that enhance their opportunities for employment in other work settings can also apply to ICBOC for certification, provided they submit the documents listed in this application form.

The certification obtained through this equivalent certification process is based on ICBOC's Standards and requirements, not on the title and level of the certification granted by other boards. Applicants for an ICBOC equivalent certification must be in possession of a certification in good standing with the Certification Board with whom they are certified, at the date of their certification application with ICBOC.

Renewing your equivalent certification

- Applicants who have already obtained a certification equivalence with ICBOC and who wish to renew this certification after two years, must complete the Application for Equivalent Recertification and submit the required documents. This form will be sent with your recertification reminder or is available on request.

Upgrading your equivalent certification

- To obtain a certification upgrade, professionals who have been certified by ICBOC through a certification equivalence are required to complete the application package corresponding to the category and level of certification they are applying for. This form is available on request.
